[For the Dispatch.]

The State makes no appropriation for institutes. She provides a State Normal School for the equestion and training of white female teachers for her public schools, and has made an appropriation for the establishment of a normal school for white males in connection with the College of William and Mary. The Virgleia Normal and Collegiste Institute, Petersburg, and the Hampton Normal and Agricultural Institute furnish ample facilities for the education of colored teachers of both sexes. These institutions are every year turning out numbers of graduates well qualified for the vocation of teaching. But of necessity it will require time for the laftuonce of these institutions to be feit to any great exicult upon a system of schools in which over 7,000 leachers are employed. Of this large number of public-school teachers some were educated at State institutions and denominational colleges; others have had the advantages of the normal schools, but the great majority received their education in the public and prisels schools and academies of the State. It is for the special benefit of the first and last-named classes of teachers that "institutes" or training-schools have been organized.

THE INSTITUTES.

THE INSTITUTES.

It is no reflection on the faithful, earnest, conscientious band of workers to say that many could be—ought to be—better qualified for their work. Some need more thorough and comprehensive knowledged for expensively the subject saught; others, better methods of imparting that knowledge—nore skill in the organization and management of schools, &c. Just here is the mission of the institute. Those now engaged in the schools and thereby secure the benealts of professional instruction. The institute is opened after the teachers' school-room work for the term is over, and opportunities for acquiring more thorough scholarship, knowledge of improved methods of teaching, suggestions as to tack and skill in governing pupils, &c., are extended to teachers. This lack of special professional training is by no means confined to our own State. All the states have had in some measure to contend with this obstacle. Many of them, however, have had for years self-equipped normal schools. Others provide for institutes by requiring a small fee in payment for self-case an institute fund. Others still make liberal appropriations to carry on this work.

PEARODY FUND.

The trustees of the Peabody educational fund appleciating this condition of school work—exhibited especially in the South—several years age determined to apply the bulk of the income from this fund to the education and training of teachers for the public schools. Virginia has received her share of the fund so distributed. Every year appropriations are made by the trustees in add of the State Fernale Normal School, the Haronton Normal and Agricultural Institute, and for the support of institutes. To Virginia, also, fourteen Feabody scholarships in the State Normal College, Nashville, Tenn. are allotted. These scholarships are endowments from the Peabody fund and entitle the recipients to two years attendance at the college free.

Arrangements for the institutes are made by the State Department of Public Instruction. The location of the institutes, time for holding them, selection of instructors, arrangements for reduced rates of transportation for tea hers, and many detail matters incident to the organization and management of the institutes devoive upon that department. The Feabody money goes to pay instructors, necessary incidental expenses incurred are met by the local authorities where the institutes are held. For this semmer the department announces the following programme:

ALEXANDRIA CITY. PEABOUT FUND.

The Feabody Institute to be held at this place will begin Tuesday, July 10th, and will continue in season, July 10th, and will continue in season four weeks. It will be conducted by Frofessor J. T. McCleary, institute conductor for the State of Minnesota, who, though not known to many of our people, is regarded among the prominent educators of the North and West as thoroughly well qualified for concering institutes. Wr. J. Lessie Hall, of Richmond, a teacher of experience, who has for several years been pursuing an advanced course of study in the Johns Hopkins University, will be associated in the corps of instructors. Other assistants will also be provided. Professor R. I. Carne, city superintendent of schools, Alexaodria, Va., bas issued circulars containing full particulars in regard to this institute, and any inquiries relating thereto should be addressed to him. ESTILLVILLE, SCOTT COUNTY.

he has charge of all local matters.

MARTINSVILLE, BERNY COUNTY.

This institute will open July 17th and will be in operation for Jour weeks. Conductor, Processor William M. Graybill, of Roanoke city; Assistanta Superimendent W. M. Peyton, of Henry county, and Mrs. M. S. Taliaferro, of Henry county, and Mrs. M. S. Taliaferro, of Henry county, and Mrs. M. S. Taliaferro, of Henry county, and style of the graded schools of Roanoke city, and last year very successfully conducted an institute in Giles county. Mr. Peyton was for a number of years a teacher in the public schools and is at this time superintendent of the schools of his county. Mrs. Taliaferro is also an experienced teacher, whose educational advantages have been good.

No Pennody institute has heretofore been held in this section of the State, and as the place appointed is accessible to many counties in the South Side, it is thought the attendance will be larger. Full particulars will be furnished on application to Superintendent W. M. Peyton, Martinsville, Va. LIBERTY, BEDFORD COUNTY.

LIBERTY, REDFORD COUNTY.

At Liberty an institute will be held for four weeks, beginning July 3d. Professor Henry R. Sanford, of New York, will conduct it. He will have the assistance of Miss Celestia Parrish, of Farmville, and Professor J. R. Guy, of Liberty. Professor Sanford belongs to the regular corps of institute conductors of the State of New York, and has had wide experience in institutes. He has already conducted three institutes in Virginia, and is therefore known among many of our teachers. Miss Parrish, of the State Female Normal School, has been connected with the inerts.

Parties seeking information in regard to this institute should address Superintendent N. D.
Bawkins, Codee, Bedford county, as he is managing the local affairs of the institute.

Early in September—commencing about the 4th—it is proposed to hold an institute at Cape Charles for about two weeks. The instructors will be amounced at a later day. In the mean time Dr. John E. Mapp, superintendent of schools Keller, Accomack county, will reply to any inquiries in regard to the arrangements for this institute. The foregoing gives a general outline of the work proposed for the white teachers. The colored teachers are also beneficiaries of the funds donated for institutes, and the following institutes have been arranged.

Por Colored Teachers.

For Colored Teachers.

The institute for colored teachers to be held at this place with begin June 27th and continue four weeks—Conductor, Professor Frank Trigs, of Lyschburg; Assistants, D. Webster Davis, of Richmond, and Miss Lucy Boulding, of Lynchburg. Professor Trigg has for some years been a successful teacher in the public schools of Lynchburg, and Mr. Davis and Miss Boulding, both teachers of experience, were engaged in institute work last year.

Superintendent W. W. Robortson, of Staunton, Va., is giving all needed attention to preliminaries, and parties desiring information should communicate with him.

ROANOKE CITY. BOANOKE CITY.

At Roanoke city, also, an institute for colored teachers will be held for four weeks, beginning July 17th. Professor R. L. Mitchel, of Winchester, will be in charge, and will be assisted by Mr. A. V. Norrell, of Richmond. These instructors are teachers of experience in the public schools, and last year had charge of a successful institute held at Wytheville.

Superintendent William Lunsford is giving due attention to the local management of the institute, and will respond to any inquiries in regard thereto.

Vigilial a Normal and Collegiate Institute—
PRESSURG, Va.—SUMMER SESSION.

The summer session of this institution, especially designated by law for training colored teachere for the public schools, will open June 15th, and will continue for five weeks. Professor James H. Johnston, with the faculty of the institute, will conduct the summer session or normal school. The main building of the institute will be well equipped with necessary furniture and other appearatus in time for the opening of the summer term, and the indications are that the attendance of teachers will be large.

Address freeident James H. Johnston, Petersburg, Va., for further information touching this institution.

In connection with the regular work of the Hampton Normal and Agricultural Institute General S. C. Armstrong, principal, arranged a special course of instruction for the colored teachers of the public schools. The course began May 28th and will be concluded June 14th. A good number of tea hers have availed themselves of the opportunities extended them at this institution.

An effort has been made to locate the instituter, all or them to accommodate the largest number of teachers practicable. The best available talect has been secured in the corps of instructors, as been secured in the corps of instructors, as been secured in the corps of instructors, as pecular rates of bourd and transportation have been secured for teachers desiring to attend any of the institutes, and the local officers in charge are using their best efforts to make the institutes and and profitable to all whe may attend. Certificates which will entitle the bolders to reduced rates of fare over the several railreads, &c., can be secured on application to the superintendents in charge of local arrangements or to the Reportinent of Public Instruction, No. 400 north Twelfth street, Richmond, Va.

While circulars in regard to each institute will be as widely distributed as practicable, it is hoped by the authorities that the newspapers of the State in harmony with its purpose to encourage educational enterprise will give such publicity to the matter as may be deemed of interest to beachers and the general public.

To-day there was delivered before the literary societies a speech of learning, of ability, of great depth, and of exceptional strength by the Rev. J. F. Latimer, D. D., Ph. D., who kindly consented to uil the place of Hon. J. A. Buchanan, of Abingdon, who had been invited by the societies to speak but was prevented by sudden illness. Dr. Latimer's speech, the subject of which was "The Influence of Presbyterianism on the Polity of Nations," is considered one of the ablest speeches ever delivered before the societies, combining with rate tact instruction with enjoyment, and was attentively listened to by a large and fashionable audience. This speech will doubtless be published at the request of the societies.

The Philanthropus Literary Society held its annual celebration to-night, and the orations delivered were much above those usually delivered on similar occasions.

The freshman declaimer's medal was presented to Mr. D. P. Halsey, of Virginia, through the presiding officer, and the sophomore debater's medal to Mr. W. S. Stuart, of Virginia, through Mr. A. B. Dickinson, of Virginia.
